

Because and Since

Mistakes: Because it was raining.
Because I'm late, so I'll take a taxi.
Since he has a problem.

(Note: A clause has a subject and verb.)

Exercise 1: Draw a box around the clauses. (Hint: In total, there are 10 clauses.)

1. I bought an airline ticket because I want to visit my uncle.
2. We took our dog to the vet since it was sick.
3. Since Mari didn't speak English, she spoke in French to the shopkeeper.
4. The mailman was late today because it was snowing so hard.
5. Because the air conditioner broke, all classes were canceled.

Exercise 2: Choose the correct answer for the rule.

Rule: since and because

According to the sentences in Exercise 1, when we use because or since in a sentence, we have ____.

- a) one clause b) two clauses

Exercise 3: Read the sentences. Choose the correct grammar explanation for each.

1. I went to the library because I needed a book for my report.
 - a) This sentence is grammatically correct because it includes 2 clauses with "because."
 - b) This sentence is grammatically incorrect because it has only 1 clause with "because."
2. Because I was very lucky.
 - a) This sentence is grammatically correct because it includes 2 clauses with "because."
 - b) This sentence is grammatically incorrect because it has only 1 clause with "because."
3. Since my country had elections, yesterday was a holiday.
 - a) This sentence is grammatically correct because it includes 2 clauses with "since."
 - b) This sentence is grammatically incorrect because it has only 1 clause with "since."
4. The workers look happy today. Because they got their pay-checks.
 - a) These sentences are grammatically correct because they include 2 clauses with "because."
 - b) The 1st sentence is grammatically correct, but the 2nd one is incorrect because it has only 1 clause with "because."
5. The workers look happy today. This is because they got their pay-checks.
 - a) The 1st sentence is grammatically correct, and the 2nd one is correct because it has 2 clauses with "because."
 - b) The 1st sentence is grammatically correct, but the 2nd one is incorrect because it has only 1 clause with "because".

6. My house needs a new roof since it is 25 years old.
- This sentence is grammatically correct because it includes 2 clauses with “since.”
 - This sentence is grammatically incorrect because it has only 1 clause with “since.”
7. Because the child was scared. She started crying.
- These sentences are grammatically correct because they include 2 clauses with “because.”
 - The 1st sentence is incorrect because it has only 1 clause with “because,”. The 2nd sentence is grammatically correct.

Exercise 4: Choose the correct answer for the definition.

Definition: Clauses

Definition: A clause that starts with the word because or since is called ____ .

- a dependent clause because it needs a second clause in the sentence. (In other words, it cannot stand alone.)
- an independent clause because it can be a sentence without a second clause. (In other words, it can stand alone.)

Exercise 5: Choose the sentences that are grammatically correct.

- Because he is tired, so he wants to go home.
 - Because he is tired, ~~so~~ he wants to go home.
- Since Tom learned to play the piano, and he plans to perform during our party.
 - Since Tom learned to play the piano, ~~and~~ he plans to perform during our party.

Exercise 6: Choose the correct answer for the rule.

Rule: Because, Since, and, but, so

When we use Because or Since at the start of a sentence, we usually _____ the words “so” and “and” in the sentence:

- use
- do not use

Exercise 7

- Write OK if the sentences are grammatically correct. (Hint: In total, 3 sentences are OK.)
- Correct the mistakes if they are grammatically incorrect.

OK 1. Ken didn’t have many friends in elementary school because he was shy.

___ 2. My parents bought me a new computer. ^{because}~~Because~~ I passed my math class.

- ___ 3. We moved to the city because my father found a great job there.
- ___ 4. Dr. Wilson came to my house. Since my brother was sick.
- ___ 5. Because we won the game, so we will go to a restaurant to celebrate.
- ___ 6. Since they took a lot of pictures of their vacation. They have many nice memories.
- ___ 7. Because she was a teenager, and she wanted to have her own bedroom.
- ___ 8. I started to cry at the end of the book. Because the ending was very sad.
- ___ 9. Since the movie was boring, Sara fell asleep.

Exercise 8

- ¹⁾ Write a paragraph with at least 5 sentences on one of the topics below.
- ²⁾ In at least 3 of the sentences, use “because” or “since.”

- Topic choices:
- 1) Tell about what you did last weekend and why you did it.
 - 2) Tell about your plans for next weekend and why you will do them.